

Waiting Beyond a Trump Impeachment: Deep Recession, Financial Crash, and a Green New Deal

If Americans demand that the basics of Lyndon LaRouche's economic laws be implemented now—from a Glass-Steagall Act to break up Wall Street, through to crash programs in space exploration and fusion power development—we can power our way past the deep recession and financial crash which is threatening.

Without that it's coming now. The International Monetary Fund just made a very strong warning: 40% of all corporations' debt is ready to explode inside the Wall Street and London banks as soon as we hit economic recession—which they said is heading toward the whole world economy. The Federal Reserve has been trying to stop a "liquidity crunch" in the banking system by pumping $50-100 billion in short-term loans into the big banks every morning for a month. Wall Street keeps demanding more and more; there is big trouble there, and the divisions of the banks specializing in speculations have to be split off, fast, so the lending banks can be protected. This requires bringing back the Glass-Steagall Act.

We need much greater productivity growth, credit for new infrastructure projects coming from a national bank, a mission to the Moon and Mars to drive the economy. We can return to rapid technological growth and scientific progress. Lyndon LaRouche formulated these policies as the basis for cooperation of the United States with other high-technology, space-faring nations: yes, China, Russia, India.

The United States remains committed to industrial development and technological progress because Donald Trump is its President. Every impeacher, every enemy of his now wants the so-called Green New Deal: spending trillions to send energy technology backwards, close down industry, mortify human beings to "save the planet." The media impeachers are run by the British and U.S. intelligence war party—they use "Green New Deal" as a weapon against Russia and China as well as Trump. The green billionaires like Michael Bloomberg and George Soros want to see the human population reduced. Every Democrat, virtually every European or UN official talking about "infrastructure spending" means the wretched Green New Deal.

President Trump is not only, as he said, "an island of one" for ending the wars in the Mideast and Afghanistan; he is also standing in the way of the anti-industrial rampages in the name of "climate change." In that way he was telling the truth when he tweeted yesterday, "Our record Economy would CRASH, just like in 1929, if any of those clowns became President!"

If we allow impeachment to succeed, it will cost all of us very dearly. Understand LaRouche's Four Laws and his proposed New Bretton Woods credit system, the mode of cooperation with those other space and scientific powers. We can go beyond anything mankind has had the powers to do until now; and the impeachment coup will be defeated.
