

LIVE FREE OR DIE!

AN EXPLORATION OF ITS TRUE MEANING

In an unpublished 1988 writing by Lyndon LaRouche, titled “The Impact of the American Ideology upon the Failures of U.S. Strategy,” he makes the statement:

“If the populations of western civilization are no longer motivated by patriotism, we are reduced to what is effectively a state of pervasive cowardice, in which circumstance no amount of mere material military means could make the United States defensible...”

We are precisely at such a moment today, where only true Patriotism—love of our country and the principles upon which it was founded—will serve us in overcoming the threat which now waits in the wings. This is a “1775 time,” when a determined people must once again rescue their nation from imperial threat. Any lingering cowardice or indecision must give way to determined action.

Unpatriotic Americans, who are mostly college-miseducated, have sold their birthright to the globalist elite. They have surrendered it in a wretched exchange for a watery soup of handouts, sinecures, hollow titles, unearned prestige, and mutual backscratching. Or more often, they have sold it just for the mere hope that if they “stick with program,” they may finally get some of these goodies coming to them before they die.

They have their reward. But the rest of us all must stand together, along with our re-elected President, and say with him, in the words of an heroic general of our first American Revolution: “Live free or die.” General John Stark meant by that, that there are, indeed, things which are worse than death. He was not alluding to taking up arms or running full speed into enemy traps, as some frustrated patriots advocate today. In order to be won, this battle requires a higher intelligence, a more deliberate development, and a willingness to shed the axiomatic habits of thought to which we have adapted in the post-industrial and hedonistic society in which we now live.

Who Is the Adversary?

Exactly who are those globalists who are determined to destroy our country—and came so close to achieving that before President Trump took office in 2017? Who shut down our industries? Who gutted our system of medical care, which was once the best in the world? Who destroyed our manned space program, until President Trump opened it up again? Who plunged us into an ever-worsening plague of drugs, alcoholism, and suicide, causing such “deaths of despair” to reach an estimated 150,000 in 2017 alone, which reduced American life-expectancy for the first time in history? Indeed, the cumulative total of the “deaths of despair” caused by globalist policies and actions during this century alone appears to have exceeded the sum-total of all American deaths in all the wars we have ever fought.

Lyndon LaRouche was the first to document the history of these globalist oligarchs in full. They are, essentially, the very same men against which our forebears fought to establish this nation in 1776-1789. They are the British Empire—even if its outward form has changed in our day, to predominantly a British financial empire. We have fought them through the Civil War, through their assassination of the American presidents Lincoln, William McKinley, and John Kennedy, and the martyrdom of Bobby Kennedy and Martin Luther King.

President Franklin Roosevelt had intended to abolish the worldwide British Empire after World War II, but his untimely death, and his succession by the manipulable Harry Truman, prevented it.

After World War II, the British gave their Asian and African colonies independence in name only, maintaining control through “advisors,” and through the City of London banks and the United Nations apparatus, which they control, including the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

American colleges and universities adopted the British imperial version of history and reality, indoctrinating the children of the elite in these synthetic ideologies. Barack Obama was a product of this. Wall Street was already effectively a British colony. Donald Trump's only crime was that he rejected those policies in favor of the interests of the American people and the sovereignty of our Republic.

Personnel Is Policy—Replace the Degenerate Elite!

In the one-semester economics course through which Lyndon LaRouche recruited his movement during the 1970s and 1980s, he said that a communist demagogue will tell you to “shake your fist at your oppressor.” Terrible advice! Instead, LaRouche insisted, “you must be the intellectual superior of your oppressor.”

Never was that truer than today. The degenerate “elite” who run this country has given itself away in its coverup of the blatant electoral fraud, trying to pretend, against all evidence and reason, that Biden won the November 3 Presidential election.

What is laid bare, is that they have failed totally, led by the brain-dead boomers who refuse to give up control after all these years. As Julius Krein has written, “For the boomers and near-boomers, the decisions they made during their prime were mostly terrible, and their record during their twilight is even worse.”

By 1968 at the latest, Lyndon LaRouche had pinpointed the problem as the “break of the young-adult, campus-based youth movement of the 68ers, from the then-existing generality defined by the role of agricultural, manufacturing, and science-specialist producers.”

LaRouche documented that the sickest of the 68ers not only broke from, but turned violently hostile toward those “agricultural, manufacturing, and science-specialist producers” whom Hillary publicly called the “deplorables.”

If you doubt this, look at their rage against President Trump. They would like to strangle him with their bare hands. Why? Because he represents the hated “deplorables.” He has stood up for them, and by his example showed them how to fight. When asked in a recent interview to name President Trump's greatest accomplishment, journalist Megyn Kelly replied that “he taught half a nation how to fight.” And they have exactly the same disgust toward you, that George III and his ministers had toward the Americans of the 1700s. It was intolerable that simple farmers, workmen, and merchants, would ever have the insolence to imagine that they could actually think for themselves, and rule themselves, better than those in Britain who were born to be their masters.

This elite must be replaced. In the course of joining to crush the vote fraud under President Trump's leadership, and in the course of his second administration, we must train up a truly qualified, alternative elite from among the patriotic, moral and intelligent citizenry—everything the existing “elite” is not.

The center of such education can be found in Lyndon LaRouche's science of economics, which takes the Hamiltonian system embedded in our Constitution to a much higher level, in which economics becomes the culmination of all sciences, and we can consciously maximize the ability of the human mind, to promote the Common Good, or the General Welfare, as part of God's plan for the perfection of the Universe.

This is what we mean by “Live free or die.”
